MUNICIPAL COURT.—Judge Crammer.—
In this court yesterday the seemingly interminable case of Adler & Rodelbeim vs. Joseph Green and others, an action in debt which has become familiar to the public through its frequent mention in the record of the proceedings of this court, was again called, argued to the defendants pleas, and submitted to the court.

The action in assumpsit wherein Mar-gret Batson is plaintiff and Wm. Elling-ham defendant was dismissed by order of the court, without prejudice to any right of the plaintiff. of the plaintiff.

The chancery cause of M. C. Crawford, administrator &c., vs. Margaret Batson et.

This court meets again at 10 A. M. to-day.

A DANGEROUS CHARACTER.—Yesterday a case was tried before 'Squire Philips which was atts-nded with several circumstances of considerable interest. It was at the same time ful! of amusing features to the easual observer, and of sad ones for the thoughtful looker on. The order of arrest in the case, a peace warrant, recited that "Bridget O'Keefe on oath complains that on the 26th day of August, 1880, in the county of Ohio, Walter Butter did threaten to beat, wound and kill the child of complainant, and did assault the said child, and the said complainant verily believes that unless the said Walter Butter is restrained by a bond to keep the peace he will do the child bodily injury."

The case was well under way when the spectators began to wonder where the wicked person who occupied the position of defendant could be. An INTELLIGANCER detective, urged on by the curiosity of the crowd, finally discovered him under a high desk, which was just high enough for him to stand upright beneath it. His dimensions were taken, and he was found to be just forty-four inches long and seven years of age. The testimony only went to show that Walter was no exception to the saying that "Boys will be boys." "Squire Philips accordingly discharged the boy with a lecture, and a threat to send lim to jail if he threw any more stones. The lad promised with repentant looks to "be a good boy." The costs were divided.

POOLE PRICE AND HIS GARG.—The irresistable ten-years-old highwayman, burglar and confidence operator, "Poodle Price," and his pals, two or three in number, are again in trouble, as well as in the lockup. We, yesterday, mentioned several acases of till-tapping that occurred the day before. The manner of operating led the police to believe Poodle knew something about them, and he was accordingly arrested, together with a boy named Mooney and another. Poodle denies any guilty knowledge of the till tapping, but he is also held for a brilliant little confidence game, alleged to have been played upon a man named Hutton, who lives in Meriben's row, in the back part of the Second ward. Hutton had sent his boy out to sell a wagon load of meions. Shortly after Poodle and a friend came hastily into Hutton's house, and said the boy must have some change, about two dollars he wanted. The change was given, and the boys disappeared. No more was thought of the matter till young Hutton came home, when the fact was developed that he had not sent for the change. This Poodle decies, saying that he gave Hutton the money, and he spent it for cigars and beer. POODLE PRICE AND HIS GANG.—The irre-

Albert Price, a young man of twentyone or twenty-two, a brother of Poodle's, —both, by the way, being sons of the well known Nosh Price—was also arrested yesterday on complaint of the man
Hutton, who charges him with having stolen several coats, a revolver, and several dollars in money. Price admits he has the revolver, but says the younger Hutton loaned it to him. The coats and the money, he avers, he never heard o

About noon yesterday Mrs. Louisa Loomire, of Pittsburgh, met with a serious accident at the residence of J. Zarnitz, 2425 Eoff street, where she is visiting. Bogus Marriage. - An incident that has tinge of Mrs. Southworth's novels has ranspired in Steubenville. It seems that on the 6th of this month Miss Edwards accompanied a Mr. Woods to Washington accompanied a Mr. Woods to Washington county, Pa., under the promise of marriage. They went to the house of a supposed minister, who went through the forms of a marriage ceremony. The minister gave Miss Edwards what purported to be a certificate of marriage. They returned to Steubenville and lived together until last Saturday, when Woods denied the existence of a marriage, stating that the whole affair was a hoax and that he wrote the certificate himself. Woods was married last spring to a young lady in Steubenville whom he treated so badly that she obtained a divorce at the last term of court. Miss Edwards belongs to a good family and is a good looking young lady. Woods had until recently been considered as a quiet, industrious young man, and at the content of the content of the content of the court. woods and until recently open considered as a quiet, industrious young man, and rather handsome and possessed of some means. At a seasonable hour a large crowd gathered at the stand, and this was shortly reinforced by the Washington District Club, with torches, and accompanied by the Wheeling City Band, whose music was Wheeling City Band, whose music was one of the pleasant adjuncts of the occasion. They were soon followed by the Junior Garfield and Arthur Club in tasteful caps and capes, with torches, and a handsome transparency upon which they promise to do what they can to redeem the Mountain State in 1884. They were accompanied by their excellent drum corps, and closely followed by the Fourth Ward Club, also having torches, and adding much to the imposing character of the gathering.

The crowd which had by this time collected was a gigantic one. The meeting was admitted by Democrats to far exceed their rally at the State House, and was greatly in excess of any other assemblage of the campaign. The crowd was various-lectic dwas a grante dwas admitted by Democrats to far exceed their rally at the State House, and was greatly in excess of any other assemblage of the campaign. The crowd was variously estimated, but the lowest we heard was that of a quasi-prominent Democrat who placed the number of persons at three thousand. The presence of prominent men from all parts of town attested anew the popularity of the speaker. We noted the presence of such men as Hon. C. D. Hubbard, Dr. Logan, Col. Sterling, G. W. Atkinson, W. J. W. Cowden and others. The workingmen were represented by C. D. Thompson, Lewis Jones and other representatives of the industrial interests.

Mr. Charles Hamilton called the meeting to order, and nominated Hon. A. W. Campbell for chairman, which nomination being ratified unanimously, Mr. Campbell briefly introduced General Goff, "A man who needed no introduction to a West Virginia audience." He referred to the old regime when Republicans who attempted to hold public meetings were in a danger of mob violence, and contrasting that condition of things with the freedom and security which prevades society to-day, presented General Goff as one who had in a large measure contributed to bring about the change. The appearance of the General was the signal for hearty applause. He opened by thanking the audience for the magnificent assembly of people before him. That "eea of upturned faces" and that occan of enthusiasm indicated a determination on the part of the Republican whosts to press forward to a glorious victory in November. Some time ago the different sections of the Cambolican parts had to the change.

he wanted to attempt to show that there were no reasons why a patriotic and wise citizen should vote the Democratic ticket, and then ask them to vote for America's greatest statesman, Gen. James A. Garfield, the Republican nominee for President; for that magnificent gentleman, George C. Sturgiss, the Republican nominee for Governor; and for Hon. John A. Hutchinson, that man of grit, the Republican candidate for Member of Congress. This programme was received by the crowd with marked enthusiasm, which gradually changed to rapt attention as the speaker proceeded to carry the programme out.

The Republican party is essentially the party of liberty. It was born of the union of champions of liberty and equal rights, and it has never sold its birth right. Its keystone is National unity, as distinguished from State sovereignty. The Constitution is not a mere lesgue among the States; neither is it a scheme or partnership by virtue of which the government exists. It is a solemn and indissoluble bond of union, a holy wedlock, of the American people. The truth of this claim of the Republican party's was settled, in ally and forever settled, by an appeal from the decision of the judiciary to the arbitrament of arms.
